Vintage Description:

The winter of 2020 unfolded with cool temperatures and moderate rainfall. Following a refreshing spring marked by adequate and evenly spaced showers, the extensive temperature fluctuations during the long, hot summer facilitated a seamless and trouble-free ripening process for the grapes. This progression was further supported by scattered rainfall in June and early September, alleviating water stress, yet avoiding the presence of pests and disease threats.

2020 was a season characterized by moderate temperatures and well-timed precipitation resulting an exceptionally gratifying harvest of premium-quality grapes. Although a few frosty nights in April affected the early bud break, the grapes harvested at Il Caggio presented robust skins and fully matured phenolic compounds. The characteristics of the 2020 harvest poised to yield a wine that marry richness and structure with outstanding harmony and balanced vivacity.
